On 22 February 2017, a bus carrying cruise ship passengers outside Christchurch, New Zealand, collided with a car and fell down a steep bank into thick vines. Six travellers were injured and taken to the hospital along with the drivers of both vehicles.

We understand that different employee groups have different requirements, because of this we allow you to place your traveller base across multiple plans.

Among the injured were four AIG customers, so AIG Travel was contacted to assist. A crisis response team was formed to handle the cases and assess the needs of our customers. For on-the-ground support, the team booked a flight to New Zealand within hours of the crash.
